

eCondolence.com Announces Partnership with Pathways, Provides Comprehensive Resources for Grief and Coping, and Expressing Condolences

Premier condolence website eCondolence.com announces new partnership with Pathways — a San Francisco Bay Area not-for-profit providing home health, hospice, private duty, and geriatric care management care — to provide information and resources to individuals and families, helping understand loss and express condolences.

MIAMI, FL (PRWEB) DECEMBER 02, 2015

eCondolence.com has announced a partnership with leading health services provider Pathways, expanding its network of hospice partners and bringing dedicated information, tools and resources to the more than 5,000 families that Pathways serves annually, and its caregivers.

eCondolence.com

PATHWAYS
Moving Care Forward

eCondolence.com's Learning Center provides a compilation of tools and articles, covering topics such as grief, coping, bereavement and loss, along with guidance on expressing appropriate condolences.

"Our team is dedicated to providing an easy-to-use, reliable resource for mourners, comforters and those seeking to support others following a loss," says Michael Schimmel, CEO and founder of eCondolence.com. "Through our partnership with Pathways, we help to provide patients' families and caregivers with comprehensive resources."

For Pathways, the partnership with eCondolence.com is a natural extension of the innovative, patient- and family-centered care they are known for delivering since their inception in 1977. "This unique partnership with eCondolence.com will give visitors to our website a useful array of resources such as planning checklists, condolence gifts, and what to expect at funerals of different faiths," said Pathways Chief Strategy Officer Georgia Rock. "We're known for the ongoing care we give families after a loss, and forging this partnership augments that support even more."

About eCondolence.com

eCondolence.com provides an easy-to-use, efficient resource to help family members, friends, colleagues and acquaintances cope with the loss of a loved one. The site offers information and guidance about appropriate items to send and words to express condolences in a respectful and understanding way.

About Pathways

Pathways, a San Francisco Bay Area not-for-profit, has been a pioneer in home health, hospice, and palliative care since 1977. With offices in Sunnyvale, South San Francisco, and Oakland, Calif., Pathways serves more than 5,000 families annually in five Bay Area counties. Pathways cares for patients wherever they live—at home, in nursing homes, hospitals, and assisted living communities.

Affiliated with El Camino Hospital and Sequoia Hospital since 1986, Pathways is accredited by The Joint Commission and is a member of the Visiting Nurses Association of America, California Hospice & Palliative Care Association, and the National Hospice & Palliative Care Organization. Pathways was a 2015 recipient of the Pilot Pioneer Award by Aging2.0, a worldwide "start-up accelerator" with a mission to fast-track innovations for improving the lives of older people, at their Global Innovation Summit. Pathways has been a HomeCare Elite top home health agencies award winner for the past four years.

For more information about Pathways, or to donate, call 888-755-7855 or visit pathwayshealth.org.

Contact:

Ezra Chasser
Director of Marketing, eCondolence.com
ezra@s2brands.com
877.724.4002 x504